Translation

Haste thee, O God, to deliver me; make haste to help me, O Lord.
Let them be ashamed and confounded that seek after my soul; let them be turned backward and put to confusion that wish me evil.
Let them for their reward be soon brought to shame that cry over me, There, there.
But let all those that seek thee be joyful and glad in thee; and let all such as delight in thy salvation say alway, The Lord be praised.
As for me, I am poor and in misery: haste thee unto me, O God.
Thou art my helper and my redeemer; O Lord, make no long tarrying.
(Book of Common Prayer: psalm 70)

Editorial Conventions

The nomenclature of the voice-parts follows the Tudor convention.
The original clef, staff signature, mensuration symbol and first note of each part are shown on the prefatory staves.
Editorial accidentals are placed above the notes concerned.
Ligatures are denoted by the sign $\overline{\hspace{1cm}}$.
Spelling of the text has been modernised.
Text repetition signs in the underlay have been expanded editorially in italics.
Underlay between square brackets is entirely editorial.

Notes on the Readings of the Sources

Source A was copied by John Baldwin, who was acquainted with Byrd at least in 1591. It is doubtful, however, whether Baldwin acquired his copy of Deus in adiutorium directly from Byrd. In his published music Byrd endeavoured to provide all the accidentals required (though not necessarily their cancellations). While this generally holds true for the present piece, there are a few notes where a required accidental appears to be missing. This may be Baldwin's doing, but he was usually a careful copyist. More surprising is the corrupted underlay in M2 at bars 142–150. Since Baldwin's reading is shared by source B (including the rhythm at 149–150), one wonders whether the sources preserve Byrd's intention, but the musical logic of the suggested amendment is undeniable. As usual in Tudor manuscripts, the underlay of both A and B, but especially the latter, is often rather casually aligned (and the variants noted below are somewhat selective), but otherwise the two sources agree closely. Certain shared readings suggest that both copies stem from very closely related archetypes.

In the notes below, each reference to a bar or group of bars is separated by an oblique stroke. Within these references multiple readings in the same voice are separated by commas and readings in different voices by semicolons. The order within each entry is: 1) bar number; 2) voice; 3) reading of the source. For extended references subsequent bar numbers are in brackets. Pitches are in capital letters, preceded by a number where necessary, e.g. ³C = third note C in the bar. The sign \asymp denotes an underlay repetition sign and + a tie.
